

Okta to Microsoft IdP Migration Services

Your Okta environment holds the essential structure of your security program. But you don't have to destroy your defenses to make a switch.

Sign-on vendors - such as Okta - have become prime targets for bad actors, and are making headlines in a bad way. Tevora gives you a safe escape route.

Why are so many switching from Okta to Entra (formerly AzureAD)?

Avoid vendor lock in and maintain control of your identities. Many identity providers are counting on vendor lock-in to maintain contracts. Meanwhile, they neglect to prioritize upgrades that satisfy and delight their existing customers.

High profile hacks mean a microscope on vendor selection. Identity resilience -the ability to recover after a compromise relating to your identity access management - is becoming a hot topic among executives and boards. When one IdP continually makes the news, tech leaders start to explore their options.

Cost savings and vendor consolidation. Many customers are opting to consolidate spending and reduce identity management complexity by moving to Microsoft Entra (formerly AzureAD).

Tevora offers expert services and proprietary solutions to ease IdP migration through the use of manual and automated techniques.
